

Acknowledgements

A book is generally not written by one person particularly a book that requires research. Many people have contributed to the assembly of this book in both large and small ways contributing their time, talents and ideas.

A special thank you goes to Dwight Newton of the University of Kentucky, Lexington for encouraging me to continue with this project when I started out with nothing. He was always available for comment or research assistance. He took enough interest to feature Sol's story on his website for all to see.

Several others have been instrumental in helping with research: Nancy Davis of Ann Arbor, Michigan; Gary Nastase of Beaverdale, Pennsylvania and Edward Surkosky of the Windber Museum in Windber, Pennsylvania. Dennis Nelson of Nelson Photography in Glencoe, Minnesota and Robert Kopperud of Boulder, Colorado for their assistance with photo services.

The following offered their time as readers: Nancy Kopperud of Jordan, Minnesota; Burt Johnson of Sun City, Arizona; Kay Johnson of Hutchinson, Minnesota; Mike Detroy of Cincinnati, Ohio; Joan Ferrier Smith of Sidman, Pennsylvania; Dennis Nelson, Dr. Peter Smyth and John Noennig of Glencoe, Minnesota; Samantha Bohnert of Little Fork, Minnesota.

A huge thank you also goes to all of the Sol Roach violin owners who came forward with their instruments so they could be recorded.
